

Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement - August 2026

TEC is committed to the aims of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and ensuring that modern slavery, human trafficking, forced labour, and exploitation have no place within our organisation, our supply chains, or any partnerships we engage in.

TEC is an independent higher-education provider delivering further education and undergraduate programmes. As a private higher-education provider, TEC does not engage in large-scale procurement, manufacturing, construction, or outsourced recruitment services. TEC's suppliers operate within regulated sectors and established UK labour-law frameworks. This significantly reduces the likelihood of modern slavery within TEC's supply chain, which are mainly UK-based providers of professional services such as the following:

- IT systems
- Digital services
- Books and educational materials
- Leases and premises-related services

Although TEC's supply chains are limited in scale and low risk, we recognise our responsibility to ensure that all suppliers, contractors, and partners operate ethically and in compliance with UK legislation. TEC maintains a robust governance and academic management framework alongside a range of policies many of which are designed to protect vulnerable individuals and prevent harm by any means including exploitation. Policies relevant to this statement include:

- Safeguarding & Prevent Policy
- Fraud Management Policy
- Anti-Bribery Policy
- Whistleblowing Policy
- Conflict-of-Interest Policy
- Procurement Policy

These policies collectively ensure transparency, accountability, and protection against coercion, exploitation, or abuse.

Supply Chains and Procurement

TEC does not knowingly work with any organisation involved in forced labour, child labour, or human trafficking and TEC's procurement processes require:

- Due diligence checks on all suppliers
- Verification that suppliers comply with the Modern Slavery Act 2015
- Dual authorisation for procurement decisions
- Avoidance of suppliers who cannot demonstrate ethical labour practices

Risk Assessment and Due Diligence

TEC's Audit and Risk Committee ensures that TEC conducts annual audits and risk assessments to identify potential areas of vulnerability within its operations and supply chains. Where risks are identified, TEC takes immediate steps to mitigate them, including:

- Reviewing supplier contracts
- Requesting compliance statements
- Terminating relationships with non-compliant suppliers

Training and Awareness

All staff receive training on:

- Recognising signs of exploitation
- Reporting concerns safely
- TEC's safeguarding and whistleblowing procedures
- Ethical procurement and due diligence

This ensures staff remain vigilant and able to act appropriately if concerns arise.

Reporting Concerns

TEC encourages all staff, students, and stakeholders to report any suspicion of modern slavery or human trafficking. Reports can be made confidentially through TEC's Whistleblowing Policy and will be investigated promptly by the Senior Management Team and, where necessary, external authorities.

Continuous Improvement

TEC is committed to strengthening its approach to preventing modern slavery. This statement will be reviewed annually by the Board of Governors and updated to reflect changes in legislation, best practice, and TEC's operational context.
